

FRANCIS D. CARLEY GONE.

COURT OFFICERS CAN'T FIND HIM TO SEIZE PAPERS.

Summons in a lawsuit to the New York City Court yesterday by the Dime Savings Institution to seize the papers of Francis D. Carley, the stock operator who is well known in Wall Street because of his connection with the Monetary Trust, an automobile concern and other undertakings, many of which have figured in the courts, is again in trouble. This time he is one of the defendants in a suit brought in the Supreme Court by E. Martin Black against Carley, William K. Vanderbilt and Edward W. W. Roosevelt on Black's trust. The papers filed do not disclose the nature of this suit, but from what was learned in Wall Street yesterday it appears to have grown out of Carley's scheme some time ago to boom Panhandle stock. Mr. Black admitted this yesterday, but added that the suit primarily had been brought with the object of getting from the courts a declaration of trust. Mr. Black, it was said, was induced to go into the Panhandle scheme by Carley, but when the operations were closed by the latter Black was unable to collect his profits from Carley, who acted as a trustee. In seeking to get a declaration of a trust from the court, Black, through his lawyer, Robert L. Stanton, of 68 William Street, has sued the persons mentioned in the papers for a specific sum, the amount of which could not be learned yesterday.

While the papers filed in court did not reveal the nature of the suit brought by Black, they did disclose another interesting phase of Carley's career by alleging that the latter had been financially embarrassed and had disappeared. Mr. Stanton made this assertion as counsel for Mr. Black. In an affidavit submitted, John W. Leland, a clerk in Mr. Stanton's office, set forth that Carley had been a diligent search for Carley but had been unable to find him. He could not be found, it was stated, as his home at 120 East Thirty-fourth street.

Carley is the father of Mrs. Oliver Hartman, of 120 East Thirty-fourth street, who is said to be in South Dakota with Mrs. Hartman. Carley started in life as a Methodist minister in Louisville. He became interested in a Kentucky land scheme, and it was in Wall Street yesterday that he was found by a court officer, but very few persons were found in Wall Street yesterday who thought that he had kept such a low profile in the money market. All kinds of reports as to who is to succeed Mr. Huntington.

The two last-named men, however, are not in a position to be considered. ## FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

FRIDAY, AUG. 31.

With the exception of American Sugar Refining and People's Gas, which together accounted for nearly one-half of the meagre business record, the transactions on the Stock Exchange reflected conditions in advance of the triple holiday. London was not a factor of importance, its operations footing up only about 5,000 shares, chiefly purchases. Sugar Refining was weak under fairly good selling pressure. The market for People's Gas, which had the appearance of forced liquidation, was steady, trading at a profit, maintaining chiefly from Boston, and rumors were current that the pressure was incidental to the calling of a loan. The stock scored an extreme loss of nearly 3 per cent, and it closed 2 points lower than on Thursday.

People's Gas was sold with a decrease in the advance on rumors of a loan. The market for the new organized Municipal Company, was preparing for a vigorous attack upon the Ogdan Gas Company. Suggestions were also made of possible unfavorable action by the municipality. The market for the new organized Municipal Company, was preparing for a vigorous attack upon the Ogdan Gas Company.
